

January Newsletter

2010 edition

What's up?

Here are some pictures that we would like to share with you!

Discover. Ignite. Develop with SPARKS...

Children taking their lunch at SPARKS!

Message to families from SPARKS!

We really love and value the children at SPARKS. They have brought much joy and laughter to everyone, and we have seen many friendships and bonds being forged among the kids over these past few weeks. Thank you so much for your trust towards the centre, we are committed to serve, and see families and children realize the SPARKS within them. We endeavour to see every young life placed in our centre being built up to have a strong sense of confidence. Thanks for being part of us!

Academic Supervision

Besides doing their individual school assignments, the children are given assessment worksheets during the time of academic supervision. This will serve to supplement them in their school work, by providing them with more practice.

Children playing board games...

More in store ..

If I could change one thing in the world...

Elijah Koh's Journal

I'd change the 24 hours into 100 hours per day because in this way, I will have more time to sleep, more time to study and play. I would also change the world into a bigger place to live in, so that I can have more places to visit and play, and more forests...

Enrichment

In our enrichment sessions, we aim to expose children to different types of learning. In this lesson, children get to experience Chinese calligraphy painting in a contemporary way by adding water colours to their paintings.

Facilitators come in to help children with their work and give them a lesson on "honesty" through a power point slide and a cartoon clip.

Stay tune for more updates!